You Will Own Nothing and Be Happy" - The Plan for Global Control

The phrase "You will own nothing and be happy" didn't come from conspiracy theorists--it came straight from the World Economic Forum (WEF). This idea was pushed in 2016 as part of their vision for the world by 2030, and it's not a prediction--it's an agenda. This isn't about making life better. It's about shifting ownership from individuals to corporations and governments, leaving everyday people dependent on the system for survival.

How They're Making This Happen

This isn't happening all at once--it's being rolled out in phases. Through economic manipulation, social engineering, and policy changes, private ownership is being systematically eliminated.

1-Housing & Property

Homeownership is becoming increasingly unaffordable while massive corporations like BlackRock and Vanguard are buying up entire neighborhoods. Policies like rent control and zoning laws discourage private property ownership. The push for "15-minute cities" is about restricting movement and forcing people into rented, controlled urban spaces.

2- Cars & Transportation

Car prices, insurance rates, and gas prices are being artificially inflated while public transit systems expand. Climate policies are being used to justify phasing out gas-powered cars in favor of EVs that can be remotely controlled or disabled. Urban planning policies remove the need for personal vehicles, forcing dependence on ride-sharing services owned by corporations.

3- Cash & Digital Currency

Cash is being phased out and replaced with Central Bank Digital Currencies (CBDCs). Digital wallets, social credit systems, and carbon tracking tools are all being developed to control spending habits. Once cash is gone, every transaction can be monitored and even restricted based on compliance.

4- Food & Farming

Independent farmers are being regulated and forced out of business. The push toward lab-grown meat and insect protein is a direct attack on food independence. Governments are purchasing farmland, and major corporations like Bill Gates' Foundation are buying up agricultural land.

5- Jobs & Income

The rise of AI and automation is eliminating jobs, increasing reliance on Universal Basic Income (UBI). UBI will be tied to compliance with government and corporate policies. The gig economy means fewer full-time jobs, fewer benefits, and no stability.

The Goal: Forced Dependence

When you don't own a home, a car, or even the ability to transact freely, your survival depends on the government and corporations who control these systems. They aren't taking your property by force--they are making it unaffordable and unsustainable to own anything. The ultimate goal is a world where everything is "rented" and controlled by a small group of elites. Every purchase, movement, and decision will be tracked, scored, and conditioned.

The Time to Resist Is Now

This system isn't fully in place yet, but it's moving fast. Every new crisis, law, and policy change pushes us closer to a world where private ownership is impossible.

Will you allow yourself to be dependent on this system? Or will you take steps to remain independent and reject this control? This isn't a theory. It's a plan playing out in real time. What are you going to do about it?
